An International Conference on Urban & Regional Planning to Celebrate the 50th Anniversary of Planning Education in Indonesia

Bandung, Indonesia
November 12-13, 2009

This International Conference aims to bring together researchers, scientists, practitioners and students to exchange and share their experiences, new ideas, and research results about all aspects of Urban, Regional Planning, and discuss the practical challenges encountered and the solutions adopted. Call for Papers

One of the most pressing issues affecting world population is the changing climate which has brought about detrimental impacts in water availability, agricultural production, pests and diseases as well as has created natural disasters in many parts of the world. Ironically, the changing climate is a product of modern civilization supported by capitalism. Although many nations have realized urgency of the situations, significant global actions to avoid environmental catastrophes with complex economic and social consequences have not been materialized yet.
